DEBATE
ON THE JOINT RESOLUTION
Approving the conduct of the Executive in relation to the refusal to receive any further communication from Francis Jas. Jackson.

In committee of the whole Mr. BASSET in the chair—

[Mr. Gholson's speech concluded.]

In Mr. Smith's letter to Mr. Jackson of the 1st of Nov. he intimates to Mr. Jackson that a language implying such a knowledge on the part of the American government was altogether inadmissible. What is Mr. Jackson's reply in his letter of the 4th of Nov. which is the last communication that proper self-respect on the part of the American government would permit it to receive from him? After again insinuating that our government had a knowledge of Mr. Erskine's instructions, he says, "That any thing therein (in his former letter) contained may be irrelevant to the subject, it is of course competent to you to endeavor to shew; and as far as you succeed in so doing, so far will my argument lose of its validity; but as to the propriety of my allusions, you must allow me to acknowledge only the decision of my own sovereign, whose commands I obey, and to whom alone I can consider myself responsible." In speaking of the propriety of his allusions, he acknowledges that he had made them, and does not deny that they are of the character ascribed to them. This insolent letter is concluded by expressions too plain for my misconception whatever. He says, "I have carefully avoided drawing conclusions which did not necessarily follow from the premises advanced by me, and last of all should I think of uttering an insinuation where I was unable to substantiate a fact." He here in fact recognises the insinuation imputed to him, and says he would not have made it if he could not have substantiated it. Collecting all his insinuations on the one hand and the refutation of them on the other, I draw the conclusion that Mr. Jackson not only insulted the government, but charged it with one of the foulest crimes—with direct falsehood.

If the circumstances under which he was sent and his conduct after he had arrived here were such as I have described, I ask if the occasion does not require that the American government should take a firm and dignified stand? That we should repel insults and respect ourselves? Shall the authority to whom only is entrusted the most solemn act of government which can be performed, the act of deciding on the last appeal of nations, stand by and see the executive insulted, by an emissary, such as Mr. Jackson was? I hope not, sir.

The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. Dana) seems to have endeavored to throw the whole blame of the transaction on our own government, because, he says, the arrangement ought not to have been entered into, Mr. Erskine not having exhibited for that purpose, what is termed in public law, a full power, and the gentleman has referred to a variety of authorities to support his doctrine. I would in my turn, refer that gentleman to the declaration of Mr. Jackson himself to shew that Mr. Erskine had what was considered as equivalent to a full power. Says Mr. Jackson—"Never did I imagine, or any where attempt to rest the right of disavowal upon that circumstance, (the want of a full power.) "His agreement (Mr. Erskine's) would nevertheless have been ratified had not the instructions, which in this case took the place of a full power, been violated." Here is a direct recognition that Mr. Erskine had what was tantamount to a full power—and indeed the government of Great Britain never objected to the arrangement on the ground that that gentleman had not power to negociate. It never has been denied, and the disavowal has always been rested on an alledged departure from instructions, which in fact admits the power to treat.

As to the observations of the gentleman from New York, (Mr. Emott) though it is far from my purpose and indeed very unnecessary, to endeavor to follow him thro' them; I think it proper to take notice of one remark made by that gentleman. He perceives in the correspondence between the secretary of state and Mr. Jackson, what I am utterly unable to perceive, a disposition on the part of our government on which he founds the charge of hostility against Great Britain and a disinclination to treat with her. I can see no such disposition—on the contrary, I have witnessed on the part of the American government only the greatest forbearance; and I believe it has always been their earnest wish to conclude a treaty with Great Britain on fair and reciprocal terms.

Sir, I consider the present no time for the causeless crimination of our own government, and much less is it a time for to countenance any other. We should discard domestic differences and party spirit which, at a juncture like this, may be disastrous to our country. If we differ among ourselves, in the name of God let us unite against foreign aggression and foreign insult. It is admitted by gentlemen on the other side, that both Britain and France have done us wrong. If so, why not unite against the one as well as the other? A conduct like this must produce the happiest consequences. If any thing like union is discovered against insult and injury, I believe in God it would not be long ere we were met on reciprocal terms of amity.—Sir, for my country I only desire the rule of right. That we must obtain, If it is thought I wish any disaster to befal the British nation, I am misunderstood. I am willing that Britain should be great, happy and prosperous. I should view her downfall as an inauspicious event—consequences might result from it which I will not undertake to estimate—but I hope that the expectation never will be encouraged from this hall, that Great Britain can or will receive any terms from us other than such as are fair, honorable and reciprocal.

The terms which have been offered to us are not of that kind. I submit it to gentlemen's own decision. We have long experienced injustice, and if we are only capable of being firm to our purpose and adhering to to the principles of neutrality which have hitherto guided the councils of our country, and especially the enlightened policy of the executive department, we shall no doubt obtain justice.

In every view therefore it appears to me that the resolution from the senate not only is supported by the correspondence laid before us, but is rendered peculiarly important by the occasion. The appeal made by Mr. Jackson from the executive, from the organ with which alone a foreign minister can have communication to the people, to a tribunal with which he cannot communicate, gives great force to the arguments in favor of a firm stand on our parts. I hope it will be made, and never will be abandoned till we receive that justice which has been but too long delayed.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 13.

Our system of non-intercourse was adopted with a view to punish the belligerents for their decrees and orders, violating our neutral rights; more particularly was it intended to punish Great Britain, because the superiority of her maritime force was, and is competent to restrict the commerce of France, or rather to annihilate it. We would rejoice to see any system adopted which could teach the belligerents to respect our rights, but we always did believe the non-intercourse system was calculated in its effects to benefit Great Britain to our injury.

The system of non-intercourse has two objects, the exclusion of British ships, and the exclusion of British produce and manufactures. We will notice each separately—The exclusion of British merchant ships from our ports is within our power, and can be completely carried into effect, but that this exclusion is of no serious injury will appear evident, when we investigate the subject with attention. For the years 1805, 6 and 7, the number of British ships which entered the United States did not exceed forty in each year; in the same years the number of American ships which entered British ports, averaged five hundred in each year. The apparent effect is, that Great Britain loses annually the employment of 40 vessels, and the United States of 500. We speak only of the ports of Great Britain and Ireland; the trade with her colonies, was carried on wholly in American vessels, and consequently any facts which may be deduced from the argument, will apply with additional force to the colonial trade. Great Britain must have required from the U. S. annually during the years above mentioned as much of their produce as could be transported in five hundred and forty vessels; it is believed that she does not want less at this time, but must find other means of procuring it.

The means are so plain and simple, that no exertion of mercantile ingenuity, was necessary to discover them. The produce of the United States will find its way to Amelia Island, St. Jago de Cuba, St. Bartholemews, Lisbon, &c. So far as British ships are employed in transporting the produce of the United States, from the ports above mentioned, so far their carrying trade is benefited. It is not easy to ascertain that extent with accuracy, but we will adduce a single fact, from which some idea may be formed. On the 22d of last month, there were no less than 75 British ships at Amelia Island! It would not be expected that we should shew for what object this immense number of merchant ships were assembled at a place were formerly there wgre not two in a year. The fact is evident—that at one time, and at one port, we find nearly double the number of British ships engaged in the transportation of American produce, than were engaged in a whole year during the years 1805, 6, and 7! Suppose each of the ships are two months in port, and that only half that number arrive every two months, the number will be immense. We take no notice of the British ships which are employed in transporting the produce of the United States from other ports to Great Britain, but if she requires as much of our produce as she formerly did, we may with due allowance for the proportion of the transportation which our vessels yet enjoy, say that Great Britain gains at the expence of our vessels, what the employment of 270 vessels annually, is worth exclusive of what she gains in her colonial carrying trade. Her shipping interest is still further benefitted, in the advance of freighting, from the increasing demand occasioned by our voluntary abandonment; but it may here be said that the British nation is not benefited by this advance, because it will fall upon the articles, when transported at this additional freight.—There is less force in this objection than appears at the first view. If Great Britain consumed all her manufactures, there would be great weight in this objection, but being the work-shop for the world, any additional charge upon the raw material, is paid for by the consumer. The benefit arising from her increased carrying trade, is positive, and accrues to her alone.

The exclusion of her manufactures and produce is another part of the non-intercourse system, which cannot be fully exposed until it has been tried. We are persuaded that this part of the system will fail in its object. At the commencement of our revolution, similar measures were tried by associations animated with revolutionary enthusiasm, and supported by an ordinance of congress, which subjected British goods brought from any country, and the vessels bringing them to forfeiture. In less than two years the private associations were forgotten, and British goods were bought and sold with as much publicity as they now are, and their use was restricted only by their high prices, arising from the hazard and difficulty of procuring them. The ordinance of congress slept, until the last year of the war, when the owners of some American privateers or letters of marque, acted upon it, and made a few seizures, not exceeding in all ten, for the ordinance allowed private armed vessels to capture vessels, having on board British goods. We have been informed by those who recollect the history of these times, and the cases to which we allude, that so far was it considered meritorious to execute the ordinance, that in the few instances which occurred, the captors were stigmatised; and in one instance where an American vessel of superior force having British goods on board, bid defiance to one who had seized others, the act was universally applauded.

When we find that under circumstances such as we have stated, the non-importation failed, we have no confidence in its succeeding at this time. The more the penalties are increased, the more inducements there will be to evade the law, and if the system should continue a few years, British goods will find their way under the accumulated injury arising from a loss of revenue which might be raised upon them, and the baneful effects which will be produced upon the morals of the people by habits of smuggling.

Whatever, therefore, may be the system which Congress may adopt, we do hope that a system which does no harm to any nation but our own, will be abandoned. If we are asked what system ought to be adopted, we are not prepared to say. We know that war is said to be the only means we have left; this we shall not advise, but leave those who have brought the country into that situation for which there is no other remedy, to take all the responsibility of that and their other measures—They hold the reins of government; they have all the resources of the nation at command, and if they employ them for the honor and interest of our country, we shall be among the foremost to express our approbation.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, January 12.

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

Mr. Sheffy offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to report whether monies drawn from the treasury of the U. S. between the 3d day of March, 1801, and the 4th of March, 1809, have been faithfully applied to the purposes to which they were appropriated and have been regularly accounted for.

Agreed to.

Mr. Campbell presented some papers from Mr. Shaw, principal of Charlotte Hall Academy, relative to the variation of the magnetic needle. These papers were referred to a select committee of five.

Mr. Clay called for the unfinished business of last evening, the report of the committee on the contested election of Jonathan Jennings. Mr. Livermore withdrew his motion to recommit the report.

[A message of the President of the U. States, was delivered to the speaker.]

The debate on the contested election was continued. At half past two, the question on vacating the seat of Jonathan Jennings, was taken by ayes & noes, and lost—Ayes 30—Noes 83.

Mr. Livermore moved the following resolution:

Resolved, That Jonathan Jennings returned as a delegate from the Indiana territory is entitled to a seat in this house.

The message from the President was read, it covered a report of the Secretary of State, communicating intelligence in compliance with Mr. Burwell's call of the 3d instant, respecting the blockade of the Baltic, by France.

Another message from the president was read covering a report from the secretary of state, in answer to a call of the house of the 9th Dec. last, for information concerning captures by the belligerents. Both ordered to be printed.

Mr. Eppes moved that a committee be appointed to enquire into the expediency of taking measures to expedite the public printing. Adopted.

Adjourned until Monday.

It is reported, that information has been received of Mr. Erskine's arrived in England, in 22 days. He sailed in the frigate Africaine.

Extract of a letter from William Jarvis, United States' Consul at Lisbon, to a gentleman in Boston, dated November 11, 1809.

"The Count Theodore Vander Pahlen, Chamberlain at the Court of St. Petersburg, has been appointed minister plenipotentiary, from the emperor Alexander to the United States."

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.—The ship Thomas, capt. Johnson, in 22 days from St. Michaels, brings London papers to the 18th of Nov. inclusive. We are informed that the paper of the 18th, states, that Bonaparte, while at Fontainbleau, sent for General Armstrong, and formed a Treaty, by which the French decrees are to be revoked.—It is stated, we are told, as the prevailing opinion in London, that the United States have now treaties with both France and Russia, and are about to enter fully into the plans of Bonaparte. BOSTON, January 4.

FROM SPAIN.

The Spanish papers received by late arrivals do not furnish any account of material changes. The division of the French which had penetrated into La Mancha, was retrograding. The surrender of Geron was not confirmed. The Spanish Junta continued its deliberation at Seville, and had recently removed Eguia from the head of the army, and promoted a new commander. The General Cortes of the monarchy was to convene at Seville on Monday last. The report of any part of the Toulon fleet having passed the Streights of Gibralter, as late as the 17th Nov. is contradicted.

THE first number of this valuable Work is just come to hand and is ready for inspection at the store of the subscriber, in King-street, and with Mr. Triplet, at the coffee-house.

Fully aware of the impositions that have been practised upon the public by strangers soliciting subscriptions from distant places; the Editors invite their examination of a Work perhaps the most useful, entertaining as well as extensive in its kind that has ever been undertaken in any country. And they flatter themselves that the American will by no means shrink from a comparison with the London edition, tho' offered at six dollars per Vol. less.

This number may be considered as a fair specimen of the execution of the work, and will be left a short time for examination, before the 2d number is put to press. After this the subscription will be raised to $2 25 each number; and but a few more copies printed than are sufficient to supply the subscribers, that the early patrons of this valuable Work may have a decided advantage—subsequent applications may therefore come too late.

It is also the intention of the Editor to annex to the last number a complete list of names of the subscribers as the patrons and encouragers of useful knowledge, the arts and literature of the United States.

For Sale,

The following VALUABLE PROPERTY.

A TRACT OF LAND,

CONTAINING 1800 acres, more or less, called and known by the name of Buffaloe Marsh, lying within 12 miles of Winchester, in the county of Frederick, in the state of Virginia. On about 900 acres of this tract there are several very well improved farms tenanted for life or lives, the balance free of all incumbrance, including an excellent merchant mill built with stone, the whole yielding an annual rent of about 800 dollars. Much of this tract is very fertile, well watered, and all abundance of timber. It is generally rolling, but part of it is hilly and stoney, chiefly of lime stone. It will be laid off to suit purchasers.

Another tract, called Hollis's Marsh, lying in the county of Westmoreland containg about 2800 acres, bordering on the river Potomac, adjoining the Stratford estate, and the late residence of Richard Lee, esq. of Chantilly. On the estate are a number of farms and tenants at will. Part of this land is extremely fertile, and all of it as good as the lands generally are in that part of the country. The Marsh affords excellent range for stock, and is happily situated for fish and fowls of which that river abounds, and must be a desirable estate to any person who may choose to reside in that part of the country.—It will however be laid off to suit purchasers.

The above lands are held by deeds of purchase duly recorded in the general court,

Another tract containing 99 2 acres, lying in the county of Berkeley, adjoining the residence of Rawleigh Colston, esq. of which about 660 acres is leased for the balance of the life of an aged man, the rest tenanted at will. This land is situate in what is called the big bend of Potomac, and borders on it. In point of fertility it is esteemed inferior to none in that part of the state and is held by deed from James Marshall, esq.

Seven other tracts containing 1000 acres each, adjoining each other in the county of Mason, within a few miles of the Ohio, between the two Kanhawa's on the waters of Sandy Creek, which runs through a considerable part of it. It adjoins the lands of general Washington, and the late Benjamin Harrison, jun. esq. A large portion of it is rich bottom and the upland of very good quality. It is held under the original patentee by deeds duly recorded in the general court.

Five full & complete Shares in the Dismal Swamp Company.

Upwards of 16,000 acres of Lands, being very old military rights, lying in the states of Ohio, Kentucky and the Indiana territory, chiefly patented in my own name and ready to be shewn.

A more particular description of the foregoing property may be seen by applying to Mr. Thomas Taylor, of Richmond, who is authorized to make contracts, or to myself in Alexandria. The titles are all undoubted, and the terms proposed are, one fourth in cash at the time of conveyance, the balance in three instalments, the last two to be on interest from the date. Any species of the public stock and of the different Banks in the United States of Insurance Companies—of the Potomac Bridge and Turnpike Companies will be received in payment according to their fair value. Ground rents in the city of Richmond and town of Alexandria, or Houses and Lots, will likewise be received in payment according to such rates as may be agreed upon.

LANDS

Near Alexandria to be Rented.

I WILL rent on reasonable terms, to approved tenants, the whole, or any part of the following

VALUABLE PROPERTY.

160 acres comprehending that beautiful island called Bellisle, and upwards of 60 acres of marsh adjoining; the soil is excellent, and well adapted to the cultivation of oats, indian corn, vegetables and grasses; the marsh would afford a fund of manure for the adjoining lands, and is capable of being converted at an expence probably not exceeding 3000 dollars, into a watered meadow of inexhaustible fertility. The island has been joined to the main by a substantial causeway, abounds with wild fowl, and affords two excellent fishing landings for shad and herrings, which from their proximity to the rising cities, have been fished for several seasons past to great advantage. The improvements are a young apple orchard, a rimmed meadow, and a house for the accommodation of fishermen.

140 acres situate on the eastern side of the Washington and Alexandria turnpike road, and distant about 1 mile from Alexandria, 3 from Washington and half a mile from the river. This property is under good enclosure, and will be divided into a number of handsome lots, well adapted to grass, gardens, or country retreats.

60 acres bounded by the western side of the said turnpike; will be divided into lots of a convenient depth, some of which will be sold in fee simple, affording a delightful view of the Potomac and Anacosta rivers, of the navy yard and the cities of Washington, Alexandria and Georgetown.

120 acres situate about a mile from Alexandria, and extending nearly a mile on each side of the Georgetown turnpike road. The whole of this tract lies remarkably level, and may be converted into grass lots and meadow, equal to any in the county.

30 Acres adjacent to the Federal Spring, near the country seat of captain William Harper. A great part of this tract is prime meadow land; the situation well calculated for a retreat, or for a place of public entertainment, possessing the advantage of some excellent springs, and a fine picturesque prospect.

500 acres, situate between the new George-Town turnpike and Leesburg road, 150 acres whereof are arable and meadow land, the remainder woodland. Upon the premises there is a small but convenient dwelling house, situate on a commanding eminence, with kitchen, laundry, ice-house, smoke house, corn house, stables, overseer's house, and other convenient out houses, a choice selection of fruit trees from the best nurseries, many of them in full bearing, consisting of the finest pears, peaches, apples, quinces, cherries, plumbs, almonds, apricots, mulberries, &c. with walnuts, grapes, strawberries, currants, and other hortulan productions, a never failing spring of water, and a meadow below the hill, lately sown and well set with timothy. In point of salubrity of air, beauty of prospect, fertility of soil and pleasantness of situation, this tract is equalled by few in the district.

ALSO,

For sale, or to be leased on ground rent for ever,

Upwards of 700 Building Lots, situate in the northern district of the town of Alexandria, partly on Queen, Columbus and Alfred streets, near the Episcopal church, and partly on Washington, Madison, Oronoko and Fairfax streets, among which are about 40 Lots fronting on the river, where the channel is bold, navigable and well calculated for wharfing

A plot and surveys will be shewn by col. George Gilpin, and the terms made known upon application to,
